

FIRE DESTROYS OLD FRANKFORT LANDMARK

Sparks from a chimney set fire to a dry shingle roof of the farm house on the Megarry farm on the Lincoln highway west of Frankfort Friday morning. The Frankfort chemical was called out but the flames had too much of a start and the building burned to the ground. Most of the household goods was saved. The old house was a landmark.

TINLEY PARK GARDEN NOTES

HOLLYHOCK ALLEY
There's not an alley anywhere (We've searched through countless blocks) Like ours, with quaint and lovely air—

It's thronged with hollyhocks. Those stately ladies tall and grand, Are gown'd in lovely tints, They nod and wave a lily hand— Each year their beauty prints A lasting joy on all our hearts; And we as neighbors say, No other alley in these parts Is half so fine and gay.

—Margaret J. Marquart
The regular meeting of the Tinley Park Garden Club was held July 18 at the home of Mrs. Henry Wyman. The meeting was held in the back yard under apple and lovely large shade trees.

Following the regular business, reports of all standing committees were in order.

Our civic chairman, Mrs. Lulu Rogers, received words of praise for her work in the park.

The large newly made rock garden on the east side of the path will be filled with plants, as soon as the weather permits this planting.

Mrs. John Werth, flower show chairman, turned over the prize money received for our float and she in turn thanked all who helped her make it a success. Mrs. Hartman was kind enough to let the club use their garage to trim and store the float.

Mrs. Swisher read an interesting article on the "Iris".

A complete schedule of our Flower Show was printed in last week's issue of the Tinley Park Times.

Next week a complete list of the committees will be given.

The fifth annual flower show of the Garden Club of Barrington to be held at "Oak Brae", Barrington, Ill., August 7-8, 1930.

Garden Club members return our library books to Mrs. C. Goessel, secretary who was appointed to take charge of these books.

The club wishes to have a nice display for the school children so please get busy on your posters, birdhouses, etc. See Mrs. Bert Fulton, chairman of the children's exhibits.

The following club members are away on their vacations: Mrs. Wm. Funk, Mrs. B. Fulton, Mrs. John Boeyer, and Mrs. J. Werth. Mrs. Chas. Nielsen is expecting to leave soon with her family for northern Michigan.

The Tinley Park Garden Club wishes to congratulate Mokena Garden Club on its first birthday anniversary, July 11, 1930. May success follow for the years to come.

At the close of our meeting, cake and a delicious refreshing drink was served by the hostess. Every member enjoyed this lovely meeting and were pleased that Mrs. Wyman is with us again.

Our flower guild chairman, Mrs. Mager received a bouquet of flowers from Mrs. Florence Anderson.

Start Bridge Work On Wolf Road

Actual work on the bridges on Wolf road at Mokena was begun this week when the bridge north of Mokena was torn out and the abutments for the new bridge begun. It is understood that concrete will be poured on the new job this week. Iron totalling over 102,000 pounds in weight for use on both Wolf road bridge jobs has been shipped by freight over the Rock Island to Mokena the past week. The Will County Construction Company of Joliet has charge of both jobs.

This marks the first actual construction work on Wolf road in Will County.

Heat Blows Up Pavements

The hot wave has been raising havoc with concrete pavements. On the Lincoln wholesale patches of paving has "blown up" due to the extreme heat. The past ten days 12 new squares of concrete had to be placed on the Lincoln highway between the Mokena road and New Lenox due to the concrete "blowing out."

Harvest Is On

Harvest work is now in progress. Barley has been cut and the oat harvest has also begun. Threshing is next in order and has already begun on a number of farms. The yield for both oats and barley is up to the average.

Subway Paving Gap Criticised

Much criticism is being heard relative to the dilatory methods which have been in vogue on route 51 as regards the completion of the paving of route 51 on both sides of the subway under the Rock Island tracks to the east of Mokena. These gaps have virtually closed this highway for 16 months and a confusing detour by way of a gravel road thru Mokena has been in use.

The Rock Island has a force of men now engaged installing the steel work of the bridge spanning the subway and this work will be finished before long. Yet apparently no attempt is being made to finish up the paving gaps. The public feels that action of some kind should be taken at once to hasten the completion of this paving. When this is done route 51 will be open for travel all the way.

Triangle Talkies

Howdy, Folks! Um! "Something good to tell all 'ye members' of the Triangle club. On Sunday, July 27, the club is giving a beach party at Avon Beach near Kankakee. Bring your friends and we'll have a "jolly good time."

At last! Here are the results of the team tournament. Hail the champs Edwin Hug and Marcus Klepper. Their victory was accomplished with no great ease for the team of Argyle and Mesenbrink was "biting their heels" throughout. This team just mentioned was second, Boldt and Goebel third, Detwiler and Mager fourth, Coler and Lorenz fifth.

So ends another great episode in the club's history.

The singles tournament will start on Aug. 3. Eighteen holes scheduled for that date and also the following Sunday, August 10. The remaining thirty-six holes will be played on August 17. (Members who wish to enter see Stanley Mager immediately.) its a "golden opportunity."

Peoples! Don't forget our big dance on August 2. Its on a Saturday night at Saenger Hall in Tinley. Its the "Second Annual Collegiate Dance" to be given by the club. The first was a "howling success, so come over and help us make this one even more so. We're bringing "Sammy Berk and his Rhythm Kings" back at your request. Come over and show him you mean it and I'm sure he'll repay you. Aug. 2nd is the date. Don't forget to remember!

The club's regular social meeting will be held next Monday, July 28. The committee is Lorenz, Lucht and R. Mager.

See you in the future!

Prairie Fire At Orland

Shortly afternoon Thursday, the Orland Park fire department was called out by prairie fire on the farm of Fred Yunker near Orland. The chemical truck in charge Fire Chief John Helenhouse made a quick run and stopped the flames from spreading to the residence and other nearby buildings. Mr. and Mrs. Yunker were not at home.

Beagley Lawn Party Draws Crowd

The lawn party given by the Adult Bible class of the Orland Park M. E. church at the home of Mr. Wm. Beagley, Wednesday evening was a great success. There was a big crowd and everyone enjoyed themselves. Mrs. Jacob Kramer the president of the class had everything well organized in the selection of her committees. The refreshment committee consisting of Joseph Creer, Mrs. Elmer Newton and Mrs. Mable Beagley served refreshments of Ice cream, cake, coffee and candy. The Nigger baby stand run by C. E. Beagley was a big success. There were games and entertainment for all. It has been suggested that one is held every month at different country homes to take the place of the church night during the summer. The next one will be announced later.

Extreme Heat Fires Corn Crop

The prolonged heat wave and dry spell is doing great damage to gardens and to the corn crop. Corn has begun to fire and the leaves are drying up. The ground is exceedingly dry and deep fissures are showing where the ground is baked so hard that it is cracking. It is estimated the heat and drought in the Illinois corn belt will mean a shortage of fifty million bushels of corn this fall.

Pronger Bros. Complete Paving At Frankfort

Pronger Bros., of Blue Island have completed a mile of paving at Frankfort connecting Frankfort with the Lincoln highway and route 51.

Pronger Bros., have laid one of the best pieces of paving yet built in Will county. They have done a good job and many compliments are heard. They even did more than a good job, for they even helped in grading village streets not a part of their contract and did this work free. They employed a fine bunch of men on the job. As many local men as possible were hired and quite a little money was left with Frankfort business men. It is hoped that Pronger Bros., will land other contracts.

Reject Wolf Road Bids; Ask For New Bids; To Let Contract July 31

A group of Mokena people owning property on the Wolf Road visited the office of Glenn Fletcher, Will County Highway engineer in the count house in Joliet the forepart of the week to find out why the contract for the paving of Wolf Road had not been let by the bond issue committee.

Fred Francis, chairman of the committee and Mr. Schoop, one of the members of the same committee met with the property owners and they pointed out that the bids recently received for the construction called for the building of the Wolf road from the Lincoln highway straight thru the timberland on the C. M. Cleveland farm to the county line north of Mokena, but inasmuch as considerable right of way trouble has developed on the south end, the bond issue committee did not feel it was the proper thing to award a contract under these conditions.

The Mokena Wolf road property owners got together with Mr. Francis and Mr. Schoop and after considering the matter from all angles, finally arrived at the conclusion that the most expedient way to facilitate the construction of Wolf road would be to reject all bids received for the Wolf road paving project and re-advertise for new bids on the basis that the contract should only call for the construction of Wolf road at a point north of the Hickory Creek bridge to the county line north of Mokena. By this arrangement it was figured that the construction of the highway would not be held up any longer while ways and means are being considered for cleaning up the right of way tagle on the south end.

After due consideration this compromise was agreed upon by the Wolf road property owners and the members of the Will county bond issue committee after Mr. Francis gave the assurance there would be no further delay in awarding the paving contract after the second series of bids are received. Mr. Francis further stated that he felt certain the paving job would be fully completed from the Hickory creek bridge to the county line by Thanksgiving.

On Tuesday the bond issue committee met and threw out all previous bids and passed a resolution to re-advertise for bids on the basis of the change in contract and the new bids will be received and the contract awarded on the morning of Thursday July 31st at 10 o'clock.

Soon as the contract is awarded paving of the Wolf road will be begun in August.

The right of way question on the south end from the Hickory creek bridge to the Lincoln highway will be settled either by a re-survey of the route or by condemnation proceedings following which separate bids will be advertised for and contract let for this last mile of the present Wolf road project. Under the new compromise plan the paving of Wolf road ought to move along quite smoothly from now on.

STATE GRANTS SEWER PERMIT TO MOKENA

The long awaited permit from the state water board for the proposed $70,000 sanitary sewer system for Mokena, has been received by the Local Board of Improvements. A special meeting was held Tuesday evening at which a number of legal matters were discussed and ironed out by the village attorney and the village engineer.

Just how soon work will be begun has not been said for the reason that a final hearing must first be held in county court before confirmation. Much opposition to the proposed sewer plan is manifest and a hot court fight is promised and hints are rife that even an injunction may be resorted to by the sewer opponents.

Red-headed Aloysius O'Shaughnessy suggested assuming joint responsibility with Ben Ingplein.

"Blood me for a fool, Captain, but 'tain't in the naachure of a man to see a lady the like o' her put up in the dock with a parcel o' highwaymen and coin-clippers! So if 'tis all the same to ye, just throw me in irons, and I'll swear out a declaration I was for murderin' every dirty politician in Washington. Or put it how ye will. Shure, we can say 'twas me wrote the letter and all."

An overpowering conviction of meanness, of unescapable malice, tore at Fellowes' heart. A voice within him cried that here was a stronger force than hate, but a second voice issued drily from his mouth.

"I fear you are the victim of your emotions, doctor. Treason is not a crime to be condoned."

"She knows no more o' treason nor I do of Boney's gizzard," dared O'Shaughnessy. "The poor lady may be made a mistake, but I'll take me oath there's not a morsel of harm in her."

"Nathless, she must pay for it." And as the Irishman opened his mouth to reply, Fellowes fell back upon the same argument he had offered Sophor: "The lady, being what she is, will not suffer another to assume her responsibilities."

It was probably from O'Shaughnessy, whose tongue wagged freest, that Cara learned of Fellowes' determination to fight the Badger. Their habit was to exchange the briefest of greetings, but the day the wind swung astern and the sun came out boldly she crossed the deck to where he stood, sweeping the horizon with his glass.

"Do you look for the Badger, Captain Fellowes?" she asked.

"Not yet, ma'am," he answered, choking his surprise.

Her hands clasped together nervously. There was aching appeal in the eyes that met his.

"Oh, sir—is it not sufficient that we—my father and I—should be punished? Captain Collishawe is not responsible for what we did. He acted as an enemy, to serve his king. And he had his orders—from Commodore Hardy, from Admiral Cockburn. And my Lord Wellington was behind them all, for 'twas he supported us with the ministry."

Fellowes forced himself to speak, harshly, mechanically.

"Captain Collishawe is, as you say, an enemy, ma'am. As an enemy, 'tis my duty to destroy him."

"But to seek him out! To hunt him—as one beast hunts another! Must you and James, you two of all the world, be deadly enemies for—her?" her voice sank to a whisper—"my mistake?"

She trembled so that he put out his arm to steady her, conscious of the curious glances of the officers on the far side of the poop; his mind was in a whirl—hate, jealousy, pity, anger, resentment and an emotion he would not name, even to himself, boiling and seething in one nauseous brew. Touching her, he had a mad desire to embrace her, to cover her mouth with kisses. If that was his price, she'd pay, he had no doubt. She was no coward. But he heard himself say gently:

"You make too much of this, Miss Ingplein. We are all on the rack of fate."

"Fate?" she repeated, drawing away from him. "You should say hate. 'Tis an ill thing, sir, and recoils upon him who sponsors it."

Fellowes bowed his head.

"That is a point you need not argue with me," he said. "I have set myself a task, and I am bound in honor to complete it."

"To slay James?" Her voice rang scornfully. "You are over-confident."

"It may be." He paused, fumbling for words to phrase his thought. "If I might, I'd serve you. I shall have no happiness of what I do. And yet I hate him! I hate him as I hated Chater—and what satisfaction have I had from Chater's death? But I'll not rest until he's punished—or I am dead."

Her face was tragic; there was no scorn in her voice when she replied:

"Yes, you are a proud man. And I am a proud woman. If my back had been beaten raw, I'd hate, too. Oh, you do well to hate, Lion! But 'tis me you should hate. You should tie me to the mast there, and flog me as James flogged you, flog me while your sailors look on, and lick their lips and gloat as men do at sight of another's pain. Wouldn't that satisfy you? For I deserve it, I who have brought you to enmity, two men—"

Her voice broke in a wail, and Fellowes beckoned O'Shaughnessy to him.

"Conduct Miss Ingplein below, doctor. She is too have every attention. You understand?"

The Irishman gave him a saturnine glare.

"Aye, and 'tis more than ye do, Captain, God forgive ye! There, now, alanna, come along with Aloysius."

Westward drove the Centurian, topmasts whipping from the fids, lee rigging slack; but so keenly did Fellowes watch her that she never carried away a spar, despite the press of sail he kept her under. There was no more grumbling as they neared their goal. The sea lawyers of the fo'c's'le had discovered that the sinking of an enemy's sloop of war must be rewarded by a handsome grant from congress—"Didn't the Constitution's crew gift fifty thousand dollars for the Guerriere?"

Gradually, the Centurian's company came to understand the practical reasons for her unusual armament. All sea-faring men knew the Yankee frigates were heavier built, heavier armed. They could outlast their enemies, and their batteries could outrange any craft below a line-o'-battle ship. And precisely so, the Centurian could outlast and outrange the Badger.

Next to the Long Tom, which he had named the "Big Serpent," Cuffee worshiped Cara Ingplein. "Him pity ill missee" was the one person aboard, except Fellowes, who was tolerated about when the negro was swabbing and wiping his pet.

Not the least of Fellowes' worries during this latter stage of the voyage was Cara's health. After his refusal to abandon the quest of the Badger, she remained secluded in her cabin for three days, and he knew, from Ben Ingplein's furious looks as well as O'Shaughnessy's resentful reports, that she was a sick woman—"on the bare edge of brain fever, Captain, and no fault o' your's, if I save her from that same." At O'Shaughnessy's urgency, she was fetched on deck as soon as the fever abated, and the air and sunshine put new strength in her; but there was a shadow on her face that wrung Fellowes' heart, and the circles beneath her eyes were gouged deeper with every week the Centurian bore on into the west.

He was beginning to grow moody, plagued by a dread lest the Badger had succumbed to the winter's storms or been transferred to another station, and as they neared the American coast he consulted frequently with Tom and Cuffee, refurbishing his memory of Collishawe's cruising beat, deriving satisfaction from their matter-of-fact assurance of success.

Reached Enemy's Heart Through His Stomach

Mrs. Laura Fraser, the original Becky Thatcher of Mark Twain's stories, related shortly before her death at Hannibal, Mo., how she had once gone through an experience as thrilling as any that Twain had created for his fiction. During the Civil war Mrs. Fraser's husband was a strong southern sympathizer and as he was a doctor he defied federal authorities in treating wounded Confederate soldiers. He finally was put in prison about the time that Gen. John McNeill came to Hannibal to suppress the southern sympathy and camped in Mr. Fraser's front yard while he picked out ten prisoners of Confederate leanings to be "converted" by a firing squad. Mrs. Fraser, fearing the inclusion of her husband, invited the general to a specially prepared dinner and he was so overcome with culinary delights that he ordered Fraser's release. But he reconsidered the next day and had him re-arrested, though he spared his life.—Detroit News.

The initial problem in trapping the Badger, as Fellowes saw it, was to toll her out of the blockading squadron, without exposing himself to one of the pinching maneuvers at which the Britishers were adepts. But sooner or later, he was sure, the Badger would beat the waters south of the Hook—that is, if she was still on the station. And south of the Hook he'd cast his lure.

Fellowes so contrived it that the brig sighted the highlands of Navesink an hour after sunrise of a clear, warm morning, but there were no signs of the Badger. Fretting and stewing, he ran southeast a day's sail, then lay to, and the next morning beat back against a contrary wind, plotting his course farther off-shore, on the chance that he might intercept the Badger returning from one of innumerable errands entrusted to Collishawe. But she was nowhere to seaward, and in the night he wore ship and loaded south, planning to repeat his first approach.

This time he succeeded. At noon the hail came from the lookout, perched precariously astride the fore royal yard:

"Sail ho! Mebbe a p'int to sta'b'd, sir."

Fellowes caught a glass from the binnacle rack, and ran for'ard, beckoning Cuffee to follow him up the ratlines to the foretop. Cuffee, staring across the eddying banks, made a little clucking sound with his tongue, tawny eyes gleam.

"Dat him Badger, mars'r."

"Sure of it?" Fellowes queried almost feverishly.

"S'pose yo' take him glass, yo' see." Slowly, very slowly, Fellowes swept the sea to sta'b'd. Yes, there could be no mistake about that tops'l. Fellowes himself, had helped to set it.

He trembled so violently that Cuffee steadied him on the confined platform of the top.

"Don't yo' fuss, mars'r," crooned the negro. "We goin' bust him Collishawe. Yah, him Big Serpent goin' go blam-blam-blam! Dat de bes' Long Tom Cuffee ever see."

Half-ashamed, Fellowes smiled crookedly.

"I was afraid something had happened to him. Does he see us?"

"Oh, my aunt, dar him r' yal' drop! Him come plenty quick."

Fellowes hailed the deck.

"Wear ship! We'll stand off across his bows on the sta'b'd tack. Beat to quarters, Mr. Spencer. Cuffee, you might take a shot with the Long Tom."

Fellowes lingered in his lofty aerle while the drum thumped hysterically, and the stamping of sea boots beat an accompaniment. Forward, almost at his feet, he could see the gleaming bulk of the Big Serpent, swinging to la'b'd in response to the pressure of handspikes, Cuffee a figure of demonaical energy, issuing instructions, adjusting the wad, shoving home the round shot with the last thrust of the rammer.

"Wha' him match? Gib him Cuffee. Yah, Big Serpent, hiss yo' song!"

The brass throat of the gun clanged resonantly, and a jet of flame and smoke spat out in the Badger's direction. A rumble of cannon fire responded, muffled by the mist; the Badger's chase guns, and Fellowes listened for the whirl of splash of shot, but the range was too great—probably too great for the twenty-four-pounder. Yet it was essential to give the sloop-of-war a mark to head for.

Fellowes hailed the sailing master.

"Mr. Noggle! We must reduce speed. See if you and Chips can manage a drag to tow astern. In haste!"

"Aye, aye, sir," assented Noggle.

Leaping from the forechairs to the deck, Fellowes stumbled against Cara Ingplein, balanced on an armchrest to peer over the bulwarks.

"You have no business here, ma'am," he exclaimed. "We may be in action any moment."

"Is—it James?" she asked hesitantly.

He nodded.

"And you sail away from him?"

"I can't fight the Badger under the guns of the San Domingo and a raze and perhaps a couple of thirty-sixes."

"'Tis a lure, then?" she said. "He doesn't know you are stronger. He'll come after you—so bravely—and you—you will hammer him to pieces."

"If I can keep away from him," Fellowes answered grimly. "At close range 'twould be a different matter."

"Surely, sir, you have accomplished enough by this cruise?" she persisted.

"And is it honorable to sacrifice other men's lives in a private quarrel?"

Fellowes flushed angrily.

"By your leave, Miss Ingplein! This is war. I fight my country's battles equally with my own. Captain Collishawe is more than my personal enemy."

DEBORAH, A LEADER IN A NATIONAL EMERGENCY

LESSON TEXT—Judges 4:1-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Say to them that are of a fearful heart, be strong, fear not: behold, your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompense: he will come and save you.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Deborah a Brave Woman.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Deborah a Brave Woman.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Notable Women Patriots.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Woman's Influence in Community and National Affairs.

The book of Judges covers the period from the conquest of Canaan and death of Joshua to the judgeship of Samuel. While Joshua and the elders of his generation lived, the people in some measure remained faithful to God, but the very next generation went into apostasy. Their decision may be accounted for by:

1. Their failure to drive out the Canaanites when they took possession of the land. Their failure to carry out this command of God was their undoing.

2. Their amalgamation with the Canaanites. Their tolerance of the heathen about them was quickly followed by union in marriage.

3. Idolatry. Their intermarriage with the heathen was followed by worship of the heathen gods.

In order to teach this lesson intelligently it is necessary that the teacher have a grasp of the book of Judges from which it is taken. In chapter 2:6-19 is given a synopsis of the book. Observe (1) The sin of the people (vv. 6-13). (2) God's judgment for their sin (vv. 14, 15). (3) Their repentance (3:9). (4) God delivers them at the hands of the Judges (vv. 16-19). A repetition of sin, oppression by the enemy, repentance, and deliverance, is the story of the book of Judges.

I. The National Emergency (vv. 1-3).
1. Lapse into idolatry (v. 1).
Ehud was not only a righteous but a strong ruler. Under his judgeship, freedom had been enjoyed for many years. As soon as he was dead the people turned away from God.

2. The bondage of the people (v. 2).
The Lord abandoned them to be oppressed by Jabin, king of Canaan.

3. The people cried unto God (v. 3).
Affliction brought them to their senses.

II. The Judgeship of Deborah (vv. 4-10).
The great national emergency confronting Israel was met by a woman named Deborah. Her name means "Bee." As suggested by another, she exemplified her name by her industry, sagacity and great service to the public.

1. The place where she judged Israel (v. 5).
It was under a palm tree. She held an open air court for the administration of justice.

2. Her method (vv. 6-10). (1) Her summons to Barak (vv. 6, 7). Barak means "lightning." Deborah, being a prophetess, was able to select a man whose gifts would enable him to rally the forces needed to gain victory over the formidable foe. Deborah gave definite instruction as to the number of men and the strategy to be employed, assuring him that God would deliver Sisera into his hand. (2) Barak's reply (v. 8). He expressed an unwillingness to go unless Deborah would go with him. (3) Barak rebuked (vv. 9, 10). Deborah yielded to his request, but made it plain to him that it would detract from his honor as a conqueror, "for the Lord shall sell Sisera into the hand of a woman."

III. The Defeat of Jabin's Army (vv. 11-16).
Sisera, the captain, gathered a mighty army and went forth, confident of victory over the ill-equipped and undisciplined army of Barak, but he made one sad mistake—he did not consider that it was the Lord's battle (v. 15). Through supernatural interposition the enemy became panic-stricken (25:20).

IV. Sisera Killed by a Woman (vv. 17-24).
In his flight Sisera took refuge in Jael's tent. In the guise of friendship, she committed a most heinous murder after inviting him into her dwelling.

V. The Song of Deborah and Barak (ch. 5).
This song was composed and sung in celebration of the marvelous victory which God had wrought. Deborah set forth in the most definite way that the secret of victory was the help of God.

Playgrounds for a President

GRAND CANYON OF THE COLORADO

CLIFF DWELLINGS AT MESA VERDE

EL CAPITAN IN THE YOSEMITE

IMPERIAL GEYSER IN YELLOWSTONE PARK

LAVA CLIFFS IN ROCKY MOUNTAIN PARK

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IN SELECTING the site for his summer vacation, President Hoover has set an example for all of his fellow-Americans. Unlike some of his predecessors, who picked upon one particular locality and established a "Summer White House" there, he is devoting five or six weeks of this month and next to an automobile tour of a number of the national parks in the West, traveling by easy stages from one to another, after spending a short time in each one. Thus these vast areas of scenic wonder have this summer become "playgrounds for a President," although the Hoover tour serves, if anything, to emphasize the accessibility of these vacation lands to every American and the fact that they belong to every one of us just as much as they do to the President of the United States.

Although changes in the itinerary may be made during the course of the tour, at the time this article was written the original announcement of his plan called for visits to the following national parks: Glacier in northern Montana, Yellowstone in southwestern Wyoming, Grand Teton in south central Wyoming, Rocky Mountain in north central Colorado, Mesa Verde in southwestern Colorado, Sequoia and Yosemite in California and Grand Canyon in Arizona. In general, it was announced, he would start in the north and work south, visiting first Glacier and making his last stop at the Grand Canyon when he is Washington-bound.

Already famous as a "fishing President," Mr. Hoover, according to early announcements, would spend a week in Glacier, the longest halt proposed for the entire journey of more than 5,000 miles, because of the excellence of the fishing there. However, in most of the parks where he will pitch his camp temporarily, he will find convenient and well-stocked streams. In the Yellowstone, for instance, the National Park service, which has supervision over the 21 national parks scattered throughout the country, reports that "trout fishing in Yellowstone waters is unexcelled."

All three drainage basins in that region abound in trout which often are record-breakers as to size. Yellowstone lake is the home of large trout, which are freely taken, the park officials assert, while the Yellowstone river and its tributaries yield excellent catches to the skillful angler. There is good fishing also in the other rivers of that large park, as well as in many lesser lakes. The United States bureau of fisheries during recent years has been keeping the lakes and rivers of the national parks well stocked with fish, having established special hatcheries for this purpose and co-operating closely with the officials of the National Park service in providing this sport for all visitors to the various parks.

However, the opportunity for fishing which the President will enjoy during his tour of the national parks is only a minor item in the attractions which they will offer him. Of our national parks it has been said:

"The national parks, scattered mostly throughout the western part of the United States from the Canadian border to Mexico, with one on the Maine coast, another in Alaska and still another in Hawaii, offer the greatest playground given by any nation in the world to its people.

"These great areas set apart for the permanent use and enjoyment of the American people not only afford opportunity for healthful and pleasant vacations; they combine natural beauties and wonders which, taken as a whole, are unexcelled in any other part of the world. They are outdoor laboratories, in which the geologist, the botanist, the student of wild life and of nature in any of its varied and ever varying forms may profitably spend weeks or months of intensive study.

"The national parks constitute a perpetual art gallery in which the lover of rocks and trees and skies, painted in all their natural colors by the Master Hand of the universe, finds never ending pleasure and surprise. They are a series of museums in which are spread before the eye of the beholder the geysers and the mud volcanoes of the Yellowstone, the giant trees of the Yosemite and Sequoia, the stupendously wonderful canyon of the Grand Canyon, described as the greatest example of erosion and the most sublime spectacle in the world; the extraordinary waterfalls of the Yellowstone and Yosemite; the glaciers of Mount Rainier and Glacier; the beautifully blue Crater lake, lying in the vast hollow of an extinct volcano, with sides 1,000 feet high; the prehistoric cliff dwellings of the Mesa Verde; the fantastically eroded pinnacles of the Bryce canyon; the only active volcano in the United States proper, at Lassen; Mount McKinley, the highest mountain in North America, rising higher above the surrounding country than any other mountain in the world, and numerous other marvels of nature.

"There are more features of conspicuous grandeur in the national parks of the United States than are readily accessible in all the rest of the world together, while, considered individually, there are few, if any, celebrated scenic places within easy reach abroad which are not equaled or excelled in America. At the same time there are many features of American scenery which are not to be found anywhere else or, if found, are unequaled abroad in sublimity or beauty. There are more geysers of large size in our Yellowstone National park, for instance, it is pointed out by the National Park service, than in all the rest of the world together, the nearest approach being the geyser fields of Iceland and New Zealand. Again, it is conceded the world over that there is no valley in existence so strikingly beautiful as Yosemite, and nowhere can be found a canyon of such stupendous size and exquisite coloring as the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. In Sequoia National park grow trees so huge and old that none quite compare with them."

Although the visit of President Hoover to the national parks will, as previously stated, emphasize their accessibility and the fact that they belong to all of us, not even the publicity which his tour will give these playgrounds will be needed, probably, to draw to them a record number of visitors this year. For we Americans have been taking advantage in increasing numbers every year of Uncle Sam's invitation to "come out and play in YOUR playgrounds, the national parks." The growth in the number who have answered that annual call has been a steady one, with the exception of the year 1914 when the total amounted to only 295,193. But by 1921 it had passed the million mark and in 1927 it went over the two million mark. Last year's record was 2,680,597 and it is predicted (partly because of the Hoover tour) that this year the number will exceed 3,500,000. In addition to the more than two and a half million Americans who enjoyed the wonders of the 21 national parks last year, more than half a million visited the 33 national monuments—national reservations of historic or scientific interest, such as the petrified forest in Arizona, the Dinosaur in Utah and the Shaco cliff-dweller ruins in New Mexico—which also are administered by the National Park service.

With the annual influx of this horde of pleasure-seekers, it has been an increasing problem to take care of them in such a way as to assure their greatest enjoyment during their stay. But the National Park service has proved itself equal to the task. There are ample facilities for all visitors with all sizes of pocketbooks, so that rich and poor alike can enjoy themselves. Many of the hotels have the finest equipment and every luxury that can be obtained in large cities. There are cheaper hotels, also, and lodges in which visitors may live very comfortably and quite economically. Then free public automobile camps have been established, some of them with housekeeping cabins and cafeteria service. Water, electric light and sanitary conveniences are furnished, as well as firewood and, in some places, open fireplaces for cooking. In a word, there are tourist accommodations in the parks to suit all tastes and purses. The aim of the National Park service is to fulfill the purpose for which these great open spaces have been created and to make them popular and comfortable and available for people of all degrees of income.

One feature of the parks which the National Park service is emphasizing, and to which it is giving more and more attention each year, is the educational opportunity which they offer. They are becoming great centers of nature study, and this is being encouraged in every way possible. Comprehensive plans for the development of general educational work in the national parks have been worked out carefully by a special committee of experts appointed for that purpose. In speaking of this, Director Horace M. Albright declared that perhaps the most marked progress of the year past in connection with the national parks has occurred in the development of the exceptional natural educational opportunities available. Nine years ago, he explained, the possibility of developing these areas from an educational and inspirational as well as recreational standpoint began to be dimly realized, and in a small, experimental way nature-guide and museum activities were undertaken in Yosemite National park. The movement, he added, met with popular acclaim and at the same time attracted the attention of scientists.

The fact that President Hoover is to tour the parks by automobiles recalls the fact that it is only within recent years that motor cars have been admitted to these national playgrounds, previous objection having been on the ground that it would interfere with the stage-coach routes in the reservations and further that it would frighten or kill many of the wild animals in the parks. The newest transportation problem in the national parks is now presented by airplane. Up to the present time the National Park service has not permitted the construction of permanent landing fields within park areas, upon the ground that aviation is still in its experimental stage and that until more safeguards could be assured to the public in this mode of travel, it could not be sanctioned.

But Mr. Albright makes the prediction that the airplane probably in the near future will become an accepted means of transportation to various parks, if not within them. This question is being studied not only by government officials but also by others interested in the subject of the extension of air travel in this country.

Use for Historic Building

The old court house in St. Louis, in which the Dred Scott case was tried, will be used as an exhibition place for the art of the Mississippi valley, according to plans now being shaped by the St. Louis Art league. The historic building, whose dome once was the giant of the city, now nestled down among clusters of skyscrapers, will be abandoned by the civil courts when the new $4,000,000 civil court house is ready for occupancy. The exhibitions, according to present plans, would be devoted mainly to works of modern art and are all associated with the Midwest and the valley.

Baby ills and ailments seem twice as serious at night. A sudden cry may mean colic. Or a sudden attack of diarrhea—a condition it is always important to check quickly. How would you meet this emergency—tonight? Have you a bottle of Castoria ready? There is nothing that can take the place of this harmless but effective remedy for children; nothing that acts quite the same, or has quite the same comforting effect on them.

For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old, reliable prepara-

Underwriters Make Local Recommendation

Floyd McEwan, fire chief, last week received the following reinspection report and recommendations from the Chicago Board of Underwriters:

Inspected June 3, 1930, by E. F. Reschke and G. P. Stahl, Engineers.

Changes Since Previous Inspection of October 30, 1929.

The village has recently purchased a Prospect Master Fire Fighter, 500 gallons per minute triple combination pumper and hose car. Pumper is driven by a Lycoming 115 horsepower straight 8 motor and is equipped with a 500 gallons per minute Prospect rotary gear pump and a 120-gallon booster tank with 100 ft. of 3/4-inch hose. Pumper carries 1000 feet of new 2 1/2-inch hose. Minor equipment consists of a 14 and a 28-foot ladder, one 2 1/2-gallon soda and acid extinguisher, one Pirsch foam generator, lanterns, axe, crowbar, play pipes, nozzles, and a fair assortment of other minor equipment.

Pumper was tested this date and successfully passed the three hour Underwriters' service test conducted by this office and has been accepted subject to a twelve-hour acceptance test to be conducted by the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

Apparatus is housed in a garage west of the Rock Island Railroad at 147th Street. (Former apparatus, together with frame fire station, was recently destroyed by fire).

Water is being supplied to the underground mains recently installed, at various intervals from McIntosh's waterworks system in the Home Addition and Home Garden Subdivision. As no definite arrangements have been made to regularly supply the system no credit can be allowed.

RECOMMENDATIONS. ADOPTED
A 500-gallon automobile pumper has been installed as noted above.

Improvement Recommended
1. Take immediate steps to provide water supply to present underground system installed in the village.

2. Provide automatic control of pumping equipment at Central Park Avenue Station.

(Following Recommendations apply to McIntosh's Home Addition Subdivision.)

3. Make regular inspections of hydrants, making necessary repairs, and keep records of inspections and repair made.

4. Install additional hydrants so that each hydrant for hydrant streams will serve an area not to exceed 100,000 square feet in mercantile sections, and 110,000 square feet in residential sections.

5. Install additional gate valves so that in the event of a single break it will not necessitate shutting from service a length of pipe greater than 1000 feet in the mercantile, and 1,500 feet in the residential districts.

FIRE DEPARTMENT:
6. Organize the fire department on a paid-on-call basis and perfect a fire-fighting organization with approved pitted rules and regulations and have same strictly enforced. Maintain regular drills for all members of the department, to be held monthly, and to include all maneuvers necessary to handle fires to the best advantage with the equipment available.

7. Adopt and enforce comprehensive ordinances regulating the construction of buildings, the storage and handling of explosives and inflammable substances, and the installation of electric wiring; the enforcement of such ordinances to be the duty of a qualified inspector.

The Code of Suggested Ordinances for Small Municipalities, published by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, is recommended as a standard.

MIDLOTHIAN CIGAR CONCERN

Although the Midlothian Cigar Concern is one of the village's newest enterprises, its product is in evidence in nearly every cigar stand hereabout. William L. Sedgwick, the proprietor, has had many years experience in the business. It is his aim to offer a cigar of superior quality at a moderate price.

Mr. Sedgwick, in response to the request of the MESSENGER, sets forth below a few facts about the cigar business.

"Tobacco, like all other farm crops, is influenced by climate, rainfall, soil, cultivation, etc. Some years the crop is of fine quality, while in others it is not so good in flavor or burning qualities.

"After harvesting the tobacco is hung up in sheds to dry or cure; after that it is packed and sweated to make it mellow and good burning. The leaves are sorted to size and graded, so that many grades come from one field.

"Stock tobacco is allowed to cure on the stock, while prime tobacco is stripped from the stock and the leaves hung up to dry. A great deal of tobacco is grown under shade. Great fields will be covered with a framework and muslin to keep the sun and rain off; this makes the tobacco of finer texture. Our domestic wrappers grown under shade are equal to the imported wrapper in burn, appearance and quality and are becoming more popular each year.

"In building a cigar one has quite a variety to choose from and the blending is the secret of a good cigar, although burning qualities come first. Each of the following varieties have a great many sizes and grades. In wrappers we must choose from: Imported Sumatra, Imported Java Sumatra, Imported Java and Imported Havana, Domestic Java Seed, Domestic Sumatra (grown in our Southern States), Connecticut Shade-grown, Connecticut Primed Connecticut broad Leaf and Connecticut Havana Seed wrappers.

"In binders we have Connecticut Broad Leaf, Connecticut Havana Seed, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania Broad Leaf, Pennsylvania Havana Seed binders.

"In fillers we have Imported Cuban Havana, Santa Clara, Vuelto Ahaja, Remedios, Manicaragua and Partido. Porto Rico fillers, which have become so popular of late, have a mildness not found in other tobacco and as a rule is very highly flavored.

"Our domestic fillers are known as Cuban seed, grown in Connecticut; Zimmer Spanish, grown in Ohio; Onondaga, grown in Ohio; Pennsylvania Broad Leaf; Pennsylvania Havana Seed; Gehhardt; Wisconsin Seed; Connecticut Broad Leaf Connecticut Havana Seed; Little Dutch, Connecticut primed; Connecticut Shade-grown; Florida Shade-grown; Isabella Manila fillers.

"So in building a cigar, one must know something about tobacco, as you will see. A cigar must be mild but not flat in flavor; to get them sweet and mild is the problem.

"As we find the tobacco we want from this variety, our product will be improved."

THE NEW FORD

MADE economically SOLD economically
FINANCED economically

LOW COST is only one of the savings in buying a new Ford. You also save on the cost of financing, on any accessories you may want and on the cost of operation, replacement parts and service.

The economies in distribution are just as important as economies in manufacture in keeping down the price of the Ford. The money you pay goes into increased value for the car. It is not wasted in excessively high selling costs.

On the basis of performance and the inherent worth of every part, the new Ford is unquestionably the greatest dollar for dollar value ever offered in automobiles.

It should be understood that statements made herein are applicable only to tests made under the supervision of the American Automobile Association Contest Board between September 6 and October 5, 1929, over the Pike's Peak Automobile Highway and Colorado Springs and Cuthbert Road, and the conditions stated, except in so far as the legitimate inferences might be extended.

In consideration of the readings, progress reports, calculations, analyses and general data submitted and attested to by the official representatives of the Contest Board, and in further consideration of the strict compliance of the sanctioned with the various regulations, we do certify to the statements made herein.

The Board's findings have been expressed briefly in the "fourteen points" below.

1 That the test procedure was followed accurately and that no deviation therefrom occurred which might seriously affect the soundness of any conclusions based upon the data;

2 That a reduction in the rate of wear occurring during the use of CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil over that occurring with the other oils used to the extent of 76.4 per cent was shown during these tests;

3 That greater stability of the subject oil during these tests was shown by records of examination of drained oils being nearer the viscosity of the original or fresh oil and by chemical tests of drained oils with the fresh oils;

4 That frictional temperatures occurring during the use of the subject oil were lower than temperatures occurring during the use of the comparables;

5 That higher compression pressures were obtained with the use of the subject oil during these tests than with the use of other oils. It would be directly inferred that this was caused by better ring seal;

6 That using the subject oil and during each test, greater gasoline mileage for economy was obtained than during the use of the comparables;

7 That less oil consumption as shown by the records of these tests occurred with the use of the subject oil;

8 That carbon deposits collected from the combustion chambers and cylinder heads and weighed by the official chemist were shown by the records of the test to be less after the use of the subject oil than after the use of the comparables;

9 That the subject oil showed a reduction in the case of crank-case dilution during these tests;

10 That during these tests the subject oil showed improved compression pressure, decreased rate of crank-case dilution and decreased gasoline consumption, indicating an improved ring seal;

11 That a reduction in the operating fuel and oil cost occurring during these tests with the use of the subject oil is substantiated by the records;

12 That with the use of the subject oil there occurred less deviation from cycle to cycle in compression pressure at starting speeds (as shown by the records) would indicate that improved compression at higher speeds might have occurred during these tests;

13 That the reduction in the rate of wear occurring during these tests with the use of the subject oil as shown by the records would indicate a longer motor life;

14 That while there is no reason to suppose that results similar to those of this test would not show under other conditions, it is important that references to these findings be accompanied by the statement that, in so far as the report is concerned, they cannot, as conclusions, be extended generally. However, the inference that they might be so is reasonable and rational, although not conclusive.

Boosters' Club Is Formed by Business Men

Coming to a meeting at the portable school Monday night in a skeptical frame of mind, Midlothian business men listened to a talk by the head of the Tinley Park Lions, voted to form the Midlothian Boosters' club, elected temporary officers and went away convinced that a Lions club can do wonders for the village.

The speaker of the evening, Fred Goebel, sketched the history of the Tinley Lions—how 15 years ago a business men's club had been talked, then two years ago the Lions organized. Harmony and good fellowship had been achieved the first night, he declared; politics and religion are barred as topics of discussion. Some $1500 in railroad rates has been saved the village by the club; street markers and house numbers have been put up; zoning has been accomplished; and excellent celebrations have been put over to the benefit of the merchants and the town.

Speaking on reasons for Lions affiliation, he said that in his opinion these things could not have been accomplished as a local organization. While the international dues are $4.50 a year, the members get the benefit of expert advice, the Lions magazine and entertainment when visiting other cities.

Deciding to form a temporary organization until application for Lions affiliation could be made, the 26 business men present voted to call themselves the Midlothian Boosters' Club. The temporary officers are: Claire Moore, president; Rudolph Grill, secretary; and Clarence Mills treasurer.

A membership committee of Kreis, Stotz, Clifton, Sykes and Kosowski was appointed to bring in the rest of the business people of the village and to consider applications from outsiders. Those not local business men can come in only on vote of the membership.

Members were invited to attend the Lions club meeting in Tinley Park next Monday. Several accepted the invitation and will meet at Kreis Bros., at 7:30 Monday evening. Tuesday the next meeting of the local club will be held at the school. Every business man is expected.

Posen Maroons

The Posen Maroons trounced the Saddle Boosters by a score of 20 to 3. After seven innings the teams decided to call it a day. The Boosters proved very little competition and were simply outclassed. The Maroons will play the Bella A. C. next Sunday at Blue Island.

Posen Aces

In a ninth inning rally the Blue Island Shamrocks defeated the Posen Aces 13 to 10. Hard hitting featured the contest, including home runs by M. Tunicki, L. Christie of Posen and Ganz of the Shamrocks. The Shamrocks staged a six run rally after one out to win the game in the last inning. Mason, leading hitter of the Aces, connected for two doubles and one single. The Shamrocks displayed good defense, making two spectacular catches in the outfield.

New Midlothian Post Office Opened; Has Had Rapid Growth

The Postoffice was moved into the Hille building at the Southwest corner of Prairie avenue and 147th st. Sunday, July 20th by Postmaster Cumming.

The new equipment is entirely of steel construction finished in golden oak with Italian marble base, has a large money order and registry window and a large general delivery and stamp window; 533 up-to-date keyless lock boxes run around three sides of a room 23 feet by 26 feet and is well lighted as well as conveniently arranged. The Illinois Bell Telephone Company has installed a public booth in one corner, and the entire set up makes a beautiful appearance.

The office hours are from 8 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. and will not be closed at noon; the lobby will be open to the four thousand patrons of the office from 6:45 a. m. to 11 p. m. daily.

About 1920 the Midlothian Country Club and residents of the community around Midlothian Station numbering less than 400 people becoming dissatisfied with rural delivery once again from Blue Island, decided to try for a Post office.

A petition was obtained by David Evans, a member of the Country club and circulated by R. K. Cumming, station agent some time after the Postmaster General authorized establishment of a Postoffice, "the only requirements being a place to put it and a Postmaster," and as neither seemed available the case hung fire until 1922. At that time members of the Country Club made arrangements with the the Rock Island Passenger Department to use space in the station, and prevailed upon Mr. Cumming to act as Postmaster. After some correspondence with Congressmen Elliott W. Spruhl, our first Postoffice was opened for a fourth class office in the Rock Island depot, March 22, 1922.

The first installation was a section of 36 lock boxes which were added to from time to time and reached a total of 344 by 1929.

On July 1st, 1927 the office was advanced to third class and the sale of money orders commenced.

The community growth has been so rapid that over 150 applications for boxes have gone unfilled for many months and as it was impossible to obtain more space in the railroad station larger quarters were needed.

Several months a call was made at the home of Elliott W. Spruhl, congressman for this district, by Postmaster Cumming and a personal appeal made for more adequate accommodations; within three days Congressman Spruhl had the machinery in motion and has stayed with it personally since that time.

The people of Midlothian and vicinity have Congressman Spruhl to thank for his efforts in their behalf, as the sales of this office did not yet warrant the allowances he has attained for it by using his influence at Washington and through emergency clauses he has made it possible to move this office to more commodious quarters and has given Midlothian a Postoffice of which to be proud.

The village fathers are all in a lather about the demands for road improvements made by those who have not paid their vehicle tax. The quintessence of gall, the father's think it.

Editor R. G. Andrews during his recent passages thru Oak Forest used a novel but effective disguise—the substitution of a cigarette for a curved pipe. It was necessitated by head in last week's Messenger over the junior garden activities of that section—Forest Ridge Garden "club" Notes. Simile—as depressing as 147 st., after driving on Crawford Ave. Dear Uncle:

EDITORIAL

PLANS, PLANS, NOTHING BUT PLANS!

Since 1905 a section of Bremen township, including Posen, Markham and part of Midlothian, has paid taxes to the sanitary district. Presumably the district is under a moral obligation to provide outlets in return for taxation, as these villages cannot be expected to donate money for taking care of Chicago sewage without some service in return.

State inspectors come out to the Oak Forest "stink pond," shake their heads and go away. It is said that a pestilence is certain to break out sooner or later in one of these villages, unless adequate sewage disposal is provided.

Who of us cares to loose a child as a result of this endless procrastination? Now that a "plan" is again before the district, let us get the rest of the village into the district and see that something more than a "plan" evolves this time.

This fall there is an election. Let our office holders know what we want and get definite pledges to guide our voting in November.

Sidewalk Jobs Let to G. Kehl Sons

Contracts for sidewalks in the McIntosh subdivision and on 41st ave., were let to G. Kehl Sons, 1215 N. Maplewood ave., Chicago, by the board of local improvements of Midlothian on Tuesday evening. Just two bids were received on each job. The Midwest Construction Co., bid $53,312.50 on the McIntosh job and $1,697.70 on 41st ave. G. Kehl Sons bid $50,973.20 on the one and $1,636.40 on the other. Contract awarded to the low bidder by unanimous vote.

Engineer Consoer reported the lowest bidder financially responsible and the price good, as it is 20 per cent under the estimate and will be about 24c a foot.

In response to a question by Trustee Sidell, the successful bidder promised to hire local men whenever possible, providing they have a union card or permit. He thought that from 4 to 10 local men could be employed. Hiring will be done by the superintendent in charge. Ten days must elapse after the award of the contract before work will be started.

K. Sidell reported on the interview with the Sanitary District officials, granted on Wednesday. The details are those already given some time ago in this paper, with the exception that the board wants to get all of Midlothian and Oak Forest into the district before definite plans can be made. This means that the legislature must pass the necessary laws before anything can be done. The alternative offered by the district was to wait until 1938 when the district would bear the cost without special assessment—if financially able at that time. The special assessment for the trunk sewer, the legality of which is doubtful, would cost Midlothian property owners about $70 per lot for the trunk alone. As a solution, Mr. Sidell suggested that the village investigate the cost of a separate disposal plant for the village and get out of the district unless different plans were made. It was pointed out that the upkeep on a disposal plant would be only about 20c per capita yearly.

E. F. Chaplain of Ruth Park petitioned for the vacation of a portion of an alley in his subdivision; referred to committee on streets and alleys. The cost of stop-and-go lights was reported as $89 per pole. Prices on street markers for the entire village was quoted as $200 for wooden and $300 for iron signs.

The new building code, suggested by the East End Development Association, was brought in and will come up at the next meeting.

On motion of Jebbens, seconded by Burns, and unanimously carried, an appropriation ordinance in the sum of $16,125 was passed.

Forest Ridge Garden Club Notes

The Forest Ridge Garden Club held a bunco and card party at Hall's Barn, Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. Tuaviss in charge.

The winners in Bridge were Mrs. Ruth Way, Mrs. Belle Robinson, Mrs. B. J. Reiser, Mrs. R. Hodgman; for 500, Irene Roelle, Mrs. L. Roelle; for bunco, Mesdames Barr, A. Sandeen, Thomas, Wm. Sandeen, A. Adler, W. St. Germain, Frances Mango, Eleanor Sandeen, E. S. Travis, Reynolds, M. Trumpey, Manke, Ina Borst. Refreshments were served.

The purpose of the Bunco was to raise money for the Forest Ridge Garden exhibit or Flower Show to be given in August.

The fourth annual flower show of the Garden Club of Forest Ridge will be given at Forest Ridge school, 149th and Laramie ave. on August 23rd. Rules of the contest will be published next week.

THE UNDERWRITERS' REPORT

The Underwriters' report for Midlothian, printed in full in another section of this paper, shows that one of their recommendations has been adopted by the purchase of the new fire equipment. Another will be followed out when the board adopts the new building code.

As soon as possible arrangements should be completed to get water for fire protection in our famous waterless water system. With certain of our private systems dry part of the time, there may come a major fire — then we will have a fine new fire fighter out of chemicals and no water to generate foam.

It is also evident that the fire department should be paid for calls. Men cannot be expected to get out of bed at 3 a. m., ruin their clothing and receive absolutely nothing in return.

AND A GOOD JOB, TOO

In the Sun-Rays columns of the Blue Island Sun-Standard, Dick Smith says: "A suggestion for our local Lions Club — the Midlothian Messenger suggests that its village needs a Lions Club. Midlothian is getting to be quite a big town now. Why not do some missionary work over there, Blue Island Lions?"

Thanks, Dick, we appreciate your good will. But over in Tinley Park there is one real "missionary" named Fred Goebel. We "done been converted" and when we get our club to functioning, Blue Island better watch her step on we will annex the bloomin' place.

ALFALFA DAY PROGRAM AUG-8

The Alfalfa Day program which will be held at Manhattan on August 8th is taking on new developments. County Farm Adviser L. W. Braham has just announced that the Wabash Railway Company will be here with an exhibit car which will house the University of Illinois alfalfa exhibit that caused so much comment at last year's International Livestock Show at Chicago.

With that car will be another in which will be housed a fully equipped soils testing laboratory. This laboratory will be manned by representatives of the Department of Agronomy of the University of Illinois. The soil samples will be tested, "While U Wait", by using acidity and phosphorous tests both of which were developed by scientists at the University.

As an additional feature, special recommendations for soil treatment will be given those farmers who agree to put in a test field of Alfalfa. These test fields will be handled according to plans which have given almost universal success with the crop. Similar information will be available to every farmer who has a soil sample tested.

Work on these fields will be started immediately and the alfalfa will be seeded next spring. Field meetings will be held at regular intervals at these fields to show the effect of the method of soil treatment employed.

The name of Ninian Edwards, territorial governor of Illinois and third governor under statehood, is another that is engraved on the north wall of the Centennial building. Governor Edwards was also the first United States senator from Illinois. He was born in Montgomery county, Maryland, March 17, 1775, and died of cholera at Belleville, Ill., July 20, 1833.

During the month of June permits were issued in 45 Illinois cities for a total of 2,483 buildings, with an estimated cost of $10,677,951, according to a report issued by the bureau of statistics and research of the Illinois department of labor. This is a decline in estimated valuation of 42.2 per cent from May total, and a decline of 54 per cent from the total for June a year ago.

Carl Dietz, Moline, nephew of the late Justice Cyrus Dietz of the state Supreme court, has been assigned his duties as an assistant in the office of Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom. He succeeds Roy Johnson of Quincy.

According to statistics made public by the Department of Commerce at Washington, Illinois industries last year exported merchandise valued at $238,762,882, an increase of $32,407,211 over the preceding year. Tractors comprised the largest division of Illinois exports.

Dr. Jesse H. White, head of the department of psychology of the University of Pittsburgh, has been chosen by the board of managers of the James Milikin university at Decatur as the new president of that school.

The records of Oscar Nelson, auditor of public accounts, show that during the fiscal year ended June 30, 417, 156 warrants were issued payable by the state treasurer, which included 26, 657 motor fuel tax refund warrants all of which aggregated $97,143,000.16.

Last year the number of warrants issued was 338,000, aggregating $112, 000,000.

Acquisition of new state park sites is to be recommended by the board of park advisers sometime this year, it was indicated in a preliminary report submitted to Gov. Louis L. Emmerson and Director of Public Works H. H. Cleveland. Findings of the board were based on an inspection trip of parks in the northern section of the state. A complete report will be given Governor Emmerson as soon as the group has completed an inspection of the parks in southern and central Illinois.

The addition of Effingham and Jefferson counties to the list of Illinois counties now free from bovine tuberculosis brings the number so accredited up to 50.

Life insurance written in Illinois during the month of May exceeded the figure for May, 1929, by a million dollars, according to compilations made by the insurance department of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce. The total for May this year was $76,727,000.

Prevalence of diphtheria, scarlet fever and typhoid fever is on the up-grade in Illinois, according to the weekly summary issued July 14 by the state department of public health. One hundred more cases of whooping cough were reported for that week than for the week preceding, while measles prevalence showed a marked decrease.

Circuit Judge Norman L. Jones of Carrollton has been appointed to represent the Illinois judiciary advisory council to consider national problems of law and procedure at the American Law Institute at Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore, Md. The selection of Judge Jones by Senator A. S. Cuthbertson of Bunker Hill, chairman of the Illinois council, was unanimously concurred in by all members of the Illinois council.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has asked legal advice from Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom as to whether the state can lend the federal government $2,000,000 to rush work on the Illinois waterway project. The loan is sought as a means of carrying on the work until an appropriation by congress can be made available.

The dates of the twelfth annual meeting of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce are Thursday, October 9 and Friday, October 10. The meetings, luncheons and banquets will be held at the Hotel Stevens in Chicago.

During June, 123 mines in 26 Illinois counties had an output of 3,025,842 tons with 35,556 men employed. The coal output of the state for the first half of the year totaled 25,502,141 tons, according to the report of John G. Millhouse, director of the state department of mines and minerals.

To date there are 343 babies registered for the state fair better babies conference.

Assistant Attorney General George P. O'Brien died suddenly at a Springfield hotel on July 12. Death was believed to have been caused by a heart attack, induced by excessive heat. Mr. O'Brien had been employed in the office of Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom for a year and a half and during that time he had participated in a number of cases of statewide interest.

Pointing out that trench mouth or Vincent's angina, a painful disease of the mouth, has appeared in epidemic form in several local areas of the state, Dr. Andy Hall, state health director, announced that diagnostic laboratory facilities for detecting the disease have been provided in Springfield for the assistance of dentists and physicians. Trench mouth is contagious, but is readily cured by a brief course of treatments, in most cases, Doctor Hall said.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has approved the plans outlined by Director John G. Millhouse of the state department of mines and minerals, to compile and publish a book that will record the entire history of the mining industry in Illinois, and the state's service for the instruction, protection, and advancement of all persons engaged in mining. The purpose of the publication, as outlined, is to serve as a guide to future efforts, legislative and administrative, to bring about improvement in conditions that surround the men engaged in mineral production. It will also serve to provide information covering various phases of mineral production in Illinois.

Citing the fact that 417 Illinois residents last year died from burns and the property loss due to fire was $2,000,000 a month, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has issued a proclamation designating the week of October 5 to 11 as fire prevention week.

"I urge that mayors, fire chiefs, chambers of commerce, civic organizations and schools lend their efforts to a practical program of education in their respective communities in the interest of reducing the causes of fire," the proclamation read in part.

"To prevent fire is the personal responsibility of everyone."

Congressman William E. Hull of Peoria received a special invitation from President Herbert Hoover to be present at the time the Rivers and Harbors bill, including provision for the completion of the Illinois waterway by the federal government, was signed. Congressman Hull, who has made this his major project during his service and has become one of the national leaders in the fight for the adoption of this waterway project, was presented by President Hoover with a pen used in signing the bill.

Entry blanks and rules to govern the competitive events for the inauguration of All Veterans' day, the feature for the opening day of the Illinois state fair, August 16, are being sent to the officers of all former service men's organizations in Illinois. The blanks are to be returned by August 1 to William C. Mundt, adjutant, Bloomington, or to George W. Allison at the Illinois state fair, Springfield. Preliminary contests will start at 1 p. m. Saturday, August 16. The drum and bugle corps each will be allotted a five-minute period and the bands will have ten-minute trials.

The survey for the discovery of cases of trachoma which is being conducted in the southern part of the state by the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness in co-operation with the state board of health and the United States public health service, is progressing nicely. The preliminary survey of Williamson county showed 56 cases of active trachoma. The clinics now being held are for diagnosing only, but if prevalence of the disease is found to warrant the project, it is hoped that treatment clinics will be organized later.

There is no need for anyone to lose his sight from trachoma and yet our blind pension roll contains the names of nearly 400 people who are blind as a result of this disease. Pensions paid yearly to these people amount to $146, 000 yearly to the tax payers of the state, and an ounce of prevention will be worth a pound of cure for economic reasons, to say nothing of consideration of human happiness.

One hundred and thirty-six miles of pavement have been laid this year by the state highway department, Chief Highway Engineer E. T. Sheets reports. Almost 7,000 men, Mr. Sheets said, are employed directly in state road construction. During the week ending July 3, 25.84 miles of paving were completed, including 4.66 miles of state aid projects.

There were 41 concrete mixers in operation and paving was under way in eight of the nine state road districts.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson will purchase a group of seats in the grandstand at the state fair grounds for himself and his personal friends and will also pay admission at the gate this year as he did last. This is in line with the policy of keeping down the number of passes issued to the state fair grounds. Last year less than 1,000 passes were issued. Those went to newspaper publishers and their families in part payment for state fair advertising. Workers and exhibitors, as heretofore, will get in free.

LIGHTWEIGHT TWEED IS SWANKY; PRESENT VOGUE IS FOR COTTONS

Smart Two-Piece Suit of Tweed.

IF LIFE in the good old summertime were a program of just one dance and garden party after another, if cool breezes failed to blow up "off" days which were not summery at all, if everybody stayed at home instead of motoring or sailing across the ocean deep, well, to come to the question, if these "ifs" were true why the reason for this smart tweed suit all in tones of blue, as is the model pictured?

However, since even in the best of regulated summers cool, sometimes very cool, days will intervene and since nobody stays at home anymore, since "seeing America first" and tripping to Europe are the chief aims of every progressive woman, well then, as we were saying, or intended to say, a smart two-piece suit of tweed becomes an utmost necessity in the summer wardrobe. Besides it is getting on toward the "between seasons" period when fancy lightly turns to the well-tailored suit as the most satisfactory answer to the "what to wear" problem.

See the flared skirt and the flared cape, flare answering to flare. Observe too, that this flared skirt fits snugly about the hips, a point featured in all the very latest frocks and suits. Apropos of the fitted-about-the-hips skirts, even the pleated models have their pleats stitched down firmly at the top. Do not fail to make a mental note of this new silhouette which calls for snug hiplines, for it is a detail which will be accented in forthcoming fashions for fall.

Concerning the incoming woollens for fall, rich color combinations are achieved in tweeds such as bright red-brown for the ground with nubs of yellow and rust giving a gay mottled effect.

Many napped coatings in dark colors are cleverly frosted in white. Novelty weaves are outstanding, one of the most luxurious types interworking ostrich feather strands with wool in deep wine and rose red, with knots of white.

Vogue for Cottons.

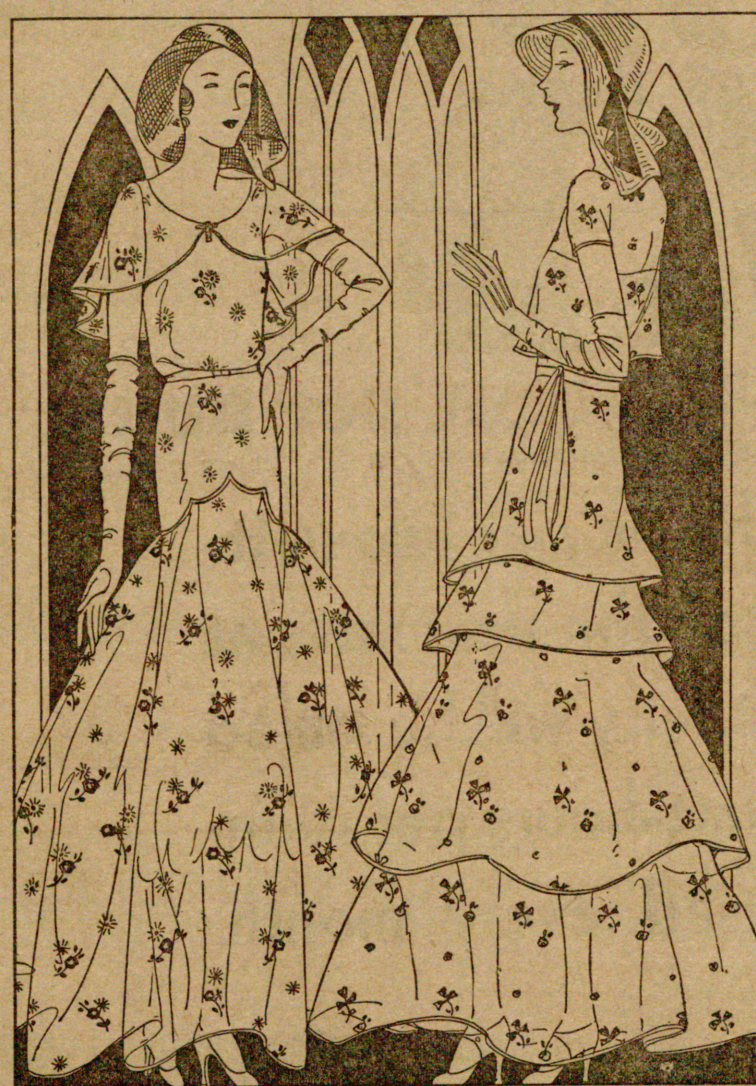

A cotton frock coveted, yea, even more than fine silk? Who would a thought it? Well, it seems so, judge.

If embroidered, just that much swankier become these sheer cottons; in fact, all-over embroidered batistes, voiles and the like are quite the newest and the smartest of media for bridesmaids' gowns, and for garden-party frocks and such.

Here are some exclusive designs illustrating the use of sheer beautifully embroidered dune cotton for bridesmaids' costumes. The soft sparkle and chic demureness of these materials, and the quaint lines of the gowns will endure them to summer maids and summer wedding guests.

Surely there's an interesting note in the new skirt length for bridesmaids—well down to the floor it is but never trailing. These lovely-to-look-upon attendants of the bride must be able to walk up the aisle without danger of tripping; at the same time they emulate the elegance of a day when ladies were picturesque, as indeed they really are once more. Of course, rights to wear such "perfectly darling" frocks as these are not reserved exclusively for bridesmaids. They are quite as lovely for party and dance wear and all summer-time festive events.

Soft little semi-cape are being accented in sheer frocks of this type, as well as in suits and topcoats and, in fact, any garment (specially printed frocks) which will admit of cape treatments. The bolero at the right is particularly chic, being balanced by the irregular tiers of the full skirt.

Two Designs in Cotton Frocks.

ing from how proudly young moderns and all the rest of the style-following femininity are wearing the perfectly charming costumes which leading couturiers of Paris and elsewhere are creating of cotton fabrics—batiste, voile, organdie, net and a host of other weaves which had their beginnings in sunny cottonfields "way down South in Dixie" and thereabouts.

Do make note of the fact that the hipline is snug no matter how full the lower skirt.

During the past spring long gloves have been seen at most smart functions. Evening gloves seen in Paris recently have been worn wrinkled row-and-row about the wrists.

FOR A BRIDE'S LUNCHEON

For the occasion either before or after the nuptials, there is nothing which the hostess can afford which will be too much trouble. For the beginning the following cocktail will be most dainty:

Cupid's Cocktail.

—Bolt together one-third of a cupful of sugar with one cupful of water, or better—canned fruit juice—for two minutes, then add four tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and cool. Chill one cupful each of seeded white grapes, red cherries, diced pears, and pineapple. Mix all the chilled ingredients together and serve in glass cups placed on pink hearts on serving plates.

Chicken Crouquettes.—Make one cupful of thick white sauce using chicken stock with milk or cream. Take two cupfuls of minced chicken, one-half teaspoonful each of salt, celery salt and onion salt and one-fourth teaspoonful of paprika. Mix all the ingredients, cool, then form into small crouquettes, cone or cylinder shaped. Roll in beaten egg to which two tablespoonfuls of water has been added, then in crumbs and set away to chill. Fry in hot fat and serve with mushroom sauce.

Heart Cakes.—Make a cake batter baking it in a shallow pan. Take one-half cupful of shortening, one cupful of sugar well creamed, flavoring to taste, two-thirds of a cupful of milk and two cupfuls of pastry flour sifted with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Mix well and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs. Bake in a moderate oven. Cut when cool into heart shapes and cover the entire cake with pink frosting.

To make the frosting use four tablespoonfuls of hot cream, two tablespoonfuls of butter and one and two-thirds cupfuls of confectioners' sugar. Mix the cream, butter, salt and flavoring, add a little red coloring and the sugar a little at a time, beating well. Arrange each cake on a paper doily and insert darts of gold paper.

Boiled frosting may be used adding enough color to make a delicate pink. Another method of frosting is to dip the cakes into melted fondant, keeping it at the right consistency over hot water. The fondant may be tinted to suit the taste.

NOW IS THE TIME

Now is the time when each fruit comes into the market to have at hand a few of the delectable recipes which have waited for them. While the fresh berries are plentiful prepare them for the winter when jellies, jams and preserves of all kinds are so much enjoyed.

serves of all kinds are so much enjoyed.

Spiced Rhubarb.—Put into the preserving kettle six cupfuls of rhubarb peeled and cut into small pieces, one cupful of seeded raisins, one cupful of apple vinegar, four cupfuls of sugar, one teaspoonful of cinnamon and one-half teaspoonful of clove. Bring slowly to the boiling point and let simmer until of the consistency of marmalade. Put into glasses and seal with paraffin. If the vinegar is very strong dilute it with water.

Pepper Hash.—Take twelve each of red and green peppers, chop fine after removing the seeds and white fiber, add twelve medium-sized onions and cover with boiling water; let stand fifteen minutes. Drain the vegetables through a colander, return to the kettle and add a tablespoonful of salt, a pint of vinegar and two cupfuls of sugar. Cook slowly until done, as for ordinary piccalilli. Put into bottles and seal.

English Gooseberry Pie.—Line the side only of a deep pie dish with rich paste. Fill with one quart of ripe gooseberries which have been stemmed and cleaned, pour boiling water over the berries and drain and cool. Add one and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter and one-third cupful of currant jelly. Moisten the edge of the pie with cold water and spread a top crust with a few perforations in the center. Flute the rim and bake forty minutes. Serve turned upside down on a platter. Serve with hard sauce.

Baked Peaches.—Select large ripe peaches for baking. Peel, cut into halves and remove stones from the peaches. In the cavity place a seedless raisin, one teaspoonful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of butter and a sprinkle of mace. Bake slowly in a moderate oven until the peaches are soft. Serve on rounds of sponge cake with sweetened cream.

Tea Punch.—Prepare ten, using four teaspoonfuls of tea to a quart of boiling water. Let stand five minutes, strain, add two cupfuls of sugar. Chill, add one-half cupful each of orange and lemon juice, two cupfuls of ice water and a pint of ginger ale. Serve with maraschino cherries.

Crusoe Not in It With

Indian Woman Recluse

The story of a woman "Robinson Crusoe" who lived alone on an island for 20 long years is told by Dr. Roy L. Moodie, who has been delving into the records of old native life in the region of Santa Monica, Calif. In his study of prehistoric diseases in America.

The feminine Crusoe had been a member of a small group of Indians which lived on San Nicholas island, off the California coast, about 100 years ago. The Spanish fathers persuaded the group to leave their lonely island and find better protection at the Santa Barbara mission. But this woman refused to come. All alone she demonstrated her self-sufficiency in the world by making her home of whale ribs and brush, and by living off the abundant fish, abalones, birds, seals and some plant products. She made her clothing of bird skins. When at last she was brought to the mission she died within six weeks.

The island possesses many relics of aboriginal life, but none so romantic as the record of the last woman. Doctor Moodie said.—Kansas City Star's Science Service.

Praises Women Debaters

Women debaters think quicker than men, in the opinion of Prof. John Henry Frizzel of the Pennsylvania State college. He has coached both men's and women's debate teams for 2 years.

"Girls come to the fore in rebuttal where quick thinking is of paramount importance," he says. Among other points where girls excel he lists tactful approach and a tendency to consider the subject more seriously.

Sweets for Indigent

Boiled sweets are supplied to the women in poor law institutions in England to balance the tobacco given to the men. The "ration" is four ounces a week.

Keep smiling, except when you meet a man who wants you to be sad with him.

One kind of tolerance is not caring what a man does if he doesn't bother you or yours.

Rage is something we all regret if we have any sense.

Patience accompanied by mere idleness is of no value.
